filled as you go

01 Works where the signal doesn't

Knock a door on a back concession with no bars. It saves on your phone and uploads itself when you're back in range.

02 Every door in your municipality

Load the whole address file once. Street-by-street counts, walk lists and a map of where you've been.

03 The paperwork, as you go

Contributions, expenses and limits tracked against the Municipal Elections Act, 1996 — Form 4 ready when you are.

04 Your data stays yours

Each candidate's support levels, donors and consent records are sealed off — even from others running in the same town.

Everything a municipal campaign actually does

Not a rebadged federal tool. Wards you can switch off, at-large councils, and the forms your clerk is expecting.

AT THE DOOR

- Walk lists by street, with door counts
- Log a knock in seconds — one tap for nobody home
- Collect a mobile number with consent recorded, wording and all
- Ask if they'll endorse publicly — kept apart from support level
- Take a photo together, with its own permission to publish
- Flag a follow-up and why; it lands on a worklist
- Add someone who isn't on the list yet, right at the door
- Half-finished doors are kept on the phone, not lost

ON THE MAP

- Every address, with the doors you've knocked
- Turf handed to a canvasser, and routes still to walk
- Lawn sign locations and a run sheet for install day

MONEY AND COMPLIANCE

- Contributions against the $1,200 per-contributor limit
- Spending and self-funding limits from your elector count
- Cash and anonymous rules, appreciation-party cap
- Form 4 with Boxes A–D and Schedules 1 and 2

PEOPLE AND OUTREACH

- Volunteers, shifts and who showed up
- Bulk text messages — only to voters who said yes
- Events, sign requests and inventory

Running more than one candidate? A consultant can hold several campaigns across different municipalities at once, each sealed from the others — and open canvass sharing later if they run as a slate.
